Glean Kentucky Clarification Questions for LFUCG-ESR Grant Cycle 2021

1. Is your proposal still viable for implementation as originally submitted?

The proposal for Glean Kentucky's 'Nourishing the Commonwealth' program is still viable as originally submitted. With the pandemic and rise in unemployment, food insecurity has become more common among Lexington residents. The agencies served by Glean Kentucky have the same or increased need for fresh fruits and vegetables.

2. Please detail any modifications you will be making to the original submission in order to comply with the new service delivery requirements in the COVID- 19 environment? (i.e. social distancing, capacity requirements, group event restrictions, etc.)

Glean Kentucky is committed to the health and wellbeing for all who are connected to Glean Kentucky. Glean Kentucky requires all volunteers and staff to wear masks while gleaning. Extra precautions are taken for volunteers and staff gleaning in open fields. Frequent breaks are allotted. A hand wash station is provided by staff to keep hands sanitary. Gleaning is naturally a social distancing approved activity, as many volunteers are alone in their cars or spread throughout a field.

3. Will these new modifications increase or decrease your proposed budget? Please detail any increases or decreases to your proposed budget including additional costs and/or other secured funding.

Glean Kentucky will see an increase in programming costs related to COVID-19. Approximately $1,000 will be used in 2020 for masks, items for hand sanitizing stations, and disinfectant.
