PROJECT PLAN ELEMENTS

The purpose of the project is to communicate project results to relevant community members and stakeholders, particularly members of the stormwater management community. The University of Kentucky Research Foundation anticipates a multi-modal approach to communicating results.

The general project elements include:

Part 1: Evaluate Urban Forests as Stormwater Management – The proposed study will evaluate the effectiveness of reforestation through evaluating the potential stormwater volume displaced by tree biomass in reforested stormwater basin. The study will also evaluate whether planting trees in basins increases management/maintenance costs and whether planting trees in basins or mowed grasslands increases infiltration rates or soil water storage capacity. Field work will be performed to evaluate the study questions. The proposed project intends to evaluate the effectiveness of reforestation as stormwater management and to evaluate the timescales (1 year since planting vs. 25 years since planting).

A. Biomass volume: Volume of planted trees will be assessed. Tree volume will be summed across the basin. Future volume of planted trees will be estimated, assuming a typical stocking density and size.

- B. Maintenance/management costs: Planted trees and their leaf litter may increase maintenance especially in autumn during leaf fall. Maintenance costs for study basins will be estimated in collaboration with basin managers.
- C. Infiltration: Infiltration rates will be evaluated in mowed and reforested basins and Reforest the Bluegrass sites, using a MiniDisk infiltrometer. Infiltration assessments will be conducted at three random and representative locations per site at least three times throughout the study.
- D. Water table: A groundwater well will be installed near the outlet of each basin, equipped with a pressure transducer and datalogger to record water height every 15 minutes. These data will be analyzed to evaluate whether the timing and dewatering differs between reforested and mowed basins. Soil samples will be collected from Reforest the Bluegrass sites and adjacent mowed areas to evaluate water storage capacity.

Part 2: Education and Outreach – The key goal of our proposed project is to communicate project results to relevant community members and stakeholders, particularly members of the stormwater management community. We anticipate a multi-modal approach to communicating results, including the following:

- A. Infographics: Infographics convey data concisely, in a highly accessible and shareable format. We will create infographics to share the results of our stormwater basin and Reforest the Bluegrass assessments with members of the public. We anticipate that these infographics, paired with more detailed text, will be useful features in both web- and text-based communications such as webpages, social media, and brochures, and we will share the infographics widely with project partners including LFUCG Urban Forestry.
- B. Extension Publication: The University of Kentucky Extension has existing extension publications regarding low-impact development; we will develop an additional extension publication reporting project results, adding to the body of knowledge. This publication will target professionals, such as managers involved in decision-making and design for stormwater management.
- C. Field Days: UKRF will host at least one field day at project sites to share project results with stormwater managers and other relevant professionals.
- D. Conference Presentations: UKRF will present project results at relevant meetings such as the Kentucky Water Research Institute symposium, the annual Kentucky Stormwater Association meeting, and the LFUCG Stormwater Stakeholders Advisory Committee meeting.
- E. Tabling at Reforest the Bluegrass: UKRF will have a table at the April 2025 Reforest the Bluegrass planting event to share the benefits of planting trees in our city, including benefits for stormwater management.
- F. Public Engagement Days: UKRF will host at least one public engagement day at a project site. Participants will learn about the benefits of urban reforestation for stormwater management and other management objectives and will help clean up the project site by removing invasive species and picking up trash.

TARGET AUDIENCE

The target audience for this project seeks to reach both stormwater management professionals and community members. UKRF will engage stormwater management professionals through extension publications, field days, and conference presentations, and will engage members of the community more broadly through infographics, tabling at events, and public engagement days. The results of the proposed project will clarify the effects of planting trees on stormwater management in our area. This information is critical for informed stormwater management moving forward. Furthermore, urban reforestation as a stormwater management strategy requires significant public support and engagement; engaging the public in conversations about the effectiveness of tree planting for stormwater management will thus also be critical.

PROJECT SUSTAINABILITY

- 1) Long-term Component for Ongoing Education and Involvement: The project will install monitoring equipment in project sites, which can be easily and inexpensively monitored by undergraduate student assistants. Furthermore, Sena and Moser will be willing and able to host additional field days for stormwater management professionals and community members, as there is interest.
- 2) Personnel for Long-Term Implementation: It is anticipated that the long-term mentoring will be performed by UKRF staff that have experience in water quality monitoring of long-term site in the Lexington area.
- 3) Ongoing Sources of Funding for Future Program Implementation beyond the Grant Period: Ongoing sources of funding for future program implementation beyond the grant period will come from internal sources, such as the Student Sustainability Council.

PROJECT SUCCESS MEASURES

1. Products produced, including datasets, publications, and infographics.
2. Presentations given, including conferences and other meetings.
3. Number of participants at professional-facing events, such as the field day(s).
4. Number of participants at public-facing events, such as tabling and basin clean-up day(s).
5. Data to reflect use and/or knowledge gains, including survey instruments (online and in-person), social media metrics, website visits and downloads, etc.

REPORTING REQUIREMENTS

In addition to the reporting requirements outlined in the Grant Award Agreement, the following are examples of special items that could also be required depending on the project:
