Agency: Prevent Child Abuse Kentucky

Program Name: Kids Are Worth It! Conference

LFUCG Partner Agency Program Funding: $2,440

Program Summary: The Kids Are Worth It! (KAWI) Conference will occur September 8-9 at the Crowne Plaza, Louisville, and is Kentucky's premiere statewide, multidisciplinary child abuse prevention training opportunity. Over 35 plenary and workshop sessions are planned; providing opportunities for participants to enhance skills in a collaborative setting. Specifics will include; community-based child sexual abuse prevention strategies; child fatality and near-fatality prevention; trauma informed care; positive youth development; and building family and community protective factors. Participants will be able to choose from workshops based on their individual and agency priorities. Workshops will be 1.5 hours to 3.0 hours in length. Participants will minimally receive 10 training hours with a cost to LFUCG of $20 per individual per hour of training, and up to $105 for lodging.

NOVEMBER 2014 ADDENDUM REVISION: Due to last minute cancellations from scholarship participants to the KAWI Conference, PCAK has a surplus of $496.85 in unused LFUCG funds. PCAK will provide one Stewards of Children, child sexual abuse prevention training, to 15 individuals. This training will provide 15 individuals with the tools needed to reduce child sexual abuse before it occurs in the first place. This training focuses on professionals, parents, or anyone providing care to children or supplying facilities where children frequent and will provide this training between February and May, 2015.

85% of participants will report learning a new skill they are able to utilize in their daily work.	PCAК uses a multi-pronged approach to data collection for the conference. Demographic data will be collected via registration. Data will be collected onsite during each workshop to assess various aspects of workshop delivery, including participant satisfaction, presenter effectiveness and new knowledge being gained by attendees. Participants will be provided an additional survey onsite developed to assess the conference as a whole. Approximately 90 days after the conference, a follow up survey will be sent to participants assessing applicability of knowledge gained through attending the conference to the daily practice of attendees.	All participants will be expected to complete evaluations while onsite. An email invitation with a link to an online survey will be sent to all participants approximately 90 days after the conference.	Participants will be provided a workshop evaluation onsite upon the conclusion of each workshop.
